DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nakamura et al. [JP63316405] in view of Chakrabarty et al. [4186367].

Nakamura discloses a varistor layer 5; and a board 4 laminated with the varistor layer 5 [Abstract, Figure1].

Nakamura discloses the instant claimed invention discussed above except for the varistor layer comprises a material including at least bismuth oxide, the bismuth oxide is diffused to the board by sintering the varistor layer and the board, and a bismuth oxide diffusing layer is provided at the board.

Chakrabarty discloses varistor layer comprises a material including at least bismuth oxide, the bismuth oxide is diffused to a board by sintering the varistor layer and the board, and a bismuth oxide diffusing layer is provided at the board [Col. 4, Lines 33-38].

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use at least bismuth oxide in varistor as taught by Chakrabarty to the varistor of Nakamura.

The motivation would have been for the bismuth oxide to be an additive metal oxide for modifying the properties of the varistor or as sintering aids [Col. 4, Lines 33-38].

Regarding claim 2, Chakrabarty discloses a board is an alumina board [Col. 4, Lines 20-24].

Regarding claim 3, Nakamura discloses the board 4 is formed by laminating a glass ceramic layer including glass on the ceramic (alumina) board [Abstract].

Regarding claim 4, Nakamura discloses the glass is diffused in the board, and a glass diffusing layer is provided at the board [Abstract].

Regarding claim 5, Nakamura discloses an adhesive layer is provided between the glass ceramic layer and the (alumina) board, the glass is diffused in the board by way of the adhesive layer, and a glass diffusing layer is provided at the board [Abstract].

Regarding claim 6, Nakamura discloses a glass ceramic layer 6 including glass is laminated on the varistor layer 5 [Abstract].

Regarding claim 7, Chakrabarty discloses the varistor layer is formed by laminating and sintering a plurality of unsintered green sheets including a powder of a varistor material, and a mean particle diameter of the powder of the varistor material falls in a range of 0.5-2.0 μ m [Col. 4, Lines 1-25].

Regarding claim 8, Chakrabarty discloses the varistor material comprises zinc oxide as a major component and at least bismuth oxide as an additive, and a mean particle diameter of a powder of the bismuth oxide is equal to or smaller than 1.0 μ m [Col. 3, Lines 1-15] and [Col. 4, Lines 1-5].

Regarding claim, Chakrabarty discloses an adhesive layer is provided between the varistor layer and the board, and the bismuth oxide is made to be diffused in the board by way of the adhesive layer [Col. 4 , Lines 8-15].

Regarding claim 10 and 11, Chakrabarty discloses the board is constituted by a circuit board having an electronic component circuit formed therein [Col. 3, Lines 47-49].

Regarding claim 12, Chakrabarty discloses the board is constituted by a low temperature sintering ceramic board [Col. 4, Lines 20-27].
